Educated Swedish fools at the malevolent medical university, Karolinska Institutet, indefensibly excommunicate its student of Public Health and sciencephobically reject all published articles in internationally recognised scientific journals that contradict Sweden's antisemitic Minister for Foreign Affairs, Carl Bildt, and Sweden's antichristian Prime Minister, Fredrik Reinfeldt.

Sweden's medical university Karolinska Institutet (www.ki.se, prestigiously known for its Nobel Prize Assembly who annually decide recipients of the Nobel Prize in Medicine) appallingly obstruct and nationalistically discriminate against international evidence within the abortion sciences. Karolinska Institutet reject all published evidence that some women suffer mental ill health related to induced abortion. Karolinska Institutet consequently refuse any academic communication with its student in Public Health, because Karolinska Institutet have decided through its professors in Public Health that "There is no evidence in literature!", whereas the student simply refer to many of the published articles in internationally recognized scientific journals which all indicate that some women do suffer mental ill health correlated to induced abortion.

Reason and science have been rejected by Karolinska Institutet's Department of Public Health, and also in the Swedish Parliament, as it appears to be forbidden to dispute two of Sweden's almost religious dogmas "There is no evidence of a relationship between induced abortion and mental ill health in literature!" and "Sweden's national abortion policy has a positive impact on women's health!", for if thou contradictest Swedish authority regarding abortion thou shalt be excommunicated. Concerning induced abortion in Sweden, enlightenment is apparently displaced with ignorance, proper science must yield to distortive politics, and reason is substituted by national dogma.

At Sweden's Nobel Prize-prestigious Karolinska Institutet, Swedish nationalism is observably prioritised over reason, evidence and science. Examiner Bo Henricsson at the Department of Public Health at Karolinska Institutet underscores Sweden's nationalistic attitude to abortion science in his written remark regarding Sweden's abortion policies in relation to international abortion research "Sweden has come further on this matter." The Swedish examiner has yet neither substantiated this claim nor clarified a rationale for his nationalistic statement, and the President of Karolinska Institutet decided that the examiner's nationalistic remark conclusively justifies disapproval of my course assignment paper; a paper which refers to internationally recognised journals. And the Swedish Professor in Social Medicine at Karolinska Institutet, Bjarne Jansson, stated in academic conversation (2007-04-11) that the cause for my academic conflict with KI concerning induced abortion is that I am insufficiently Swedish "The problem is that you are not Swedish." The Swedish professor's nationalistic deduction would therefore logically derive from the premise: Swedishness is an attribute for uncritically approving Sweden's abortion policies, rather than non-Swedishly presenting thesis ideas based on published articles in recognised scientific journals.

Swedish professors-cowards of Public Health at Sweden's Nobel-prestigious and corrupt medical university, Karolinska Institutet, motivate their refusal of academic communication with their student with two official statements. Karolinska Institutet President, Professor Harriet Wallberg-Henriksson, officially writes "The intervention suggested by Nenzén is not realistic as it contradicts the Swedish Parliament standpoint concerning abortion and unwanted pregnancies." And the Swedish Professor in Reproductive Health at Karolinska Institutet, Kyllike Christensson, exploit her position as a representative of science by her official statement "KI work for promoting good health in the world and follow in this regard the Swedish Ministry of Foreign Affairs policy: Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights." According to this Swedish KI Professor, Sweden's Ministry of Foreign Affairs is the ultimate authority on abortion-science in Sweden - not science itself.

No respectable university in any democratic state in the world would proceed as Sweden's Karolinska Institutet does. The Swedish university's despicable conduct towards its student is scandalous. Karolinska Institutet not only discriminate against and reject the international evidence based abortion-science, not only obstruct the student to proceed with thesis writing by refusing provision of a Karolinska thesis supervisor and rejecting endorsement of any non-Swedish thesis supervisor, not only refuse to provide counter-arguments in support of Sweden's rejection of the international abortion science, not only refuse to communicate academically with its student in regards to theses, but Sweden's Karolinska Institutet also refuse to provide intelligible comments and sustainable arguments for its disapproval of the student's academic assignments in Health Promotion (which also are based on published articles in recognized scientific journals in the abortion sciences). No respectable university in the world would behave like Sweden's Karolinska Institutet. When a university systematically discards the evidence from internationally recognized scientific peer review journals without ability to argue any objection for its oppositional stance, that university ceases to be regarded as scientifically credible. Sweden's Karolinska Institutet is evidently corrupted by sciencephobia in the abortion sciences.

As long as Sweden's parliamentarians and Sweden's National Institute of Public Health insistently uphold that Sweden's national abortion policy has a "positive impact on women's health", and interdependently, as long as Sweden's Karolinska Institutet persistently indoctrinate its students, the scientific and political communities, and the general public in the abortion sciences, discriminate against international scientific evidence, obstruct unbiased abortion-research and act to diminish intellectual diversity within the abortion sciences, the Swedish academy is deprived of academic freedom.

The Swedish professor-cowards at Karolinska Institutet and the sciencephobic parliamentarians of Sweden, through their persistent statement that Sweden's abortion policies "have a positive effect on women", are concurrently at war against evidence based science. At Sweden's Karolinska Institutet, national government policies overrule scientific evidence.

Sweden's politically corrupted medical university, Karolinska Institutet, continues to categorically and sciencephobically deny all scientific evidence that some women suffer mental ill health related to induced abortion. At Karolinska Institutet, where the political-domain intersect and confound the science-domain, existing scientific evidence and the pursuit of advancing scientific truth are forced to yield to Sweden's nationalistic interests and political agenda.

With political pressure from Sweden's pro-abortion government, Sweden's biased professors impede progression of abortion science by obstructing theses and impartial research, and discriminate against students who include referencing of published international articles containing undesirable results (i.e. results that contradict Sweden's national public health policy). Pro-abortion misrepresentations of scientific findings and crafty lies feed also Sweden's sciencephobic parliamentarians, and mislead the public.

Sweden's cultural and political aversions against truth, science, justice and God are continually evidenced. Although the Alliance Defense Fund (ADF) of U.S.A. has demanded correction from Sweden (<http://www.nenzen.net/ADF-letter.pdf>), all Swedish governmental authorities insist that Sweden should continue to discriminate, although it is forbidden to discriminate as Sweden does according to United Nations Convention against Discrimination in Education. Sweden's Chancellor of Justice (JK) neglects justice by refusing to investigate the shamefully discriminatory conduct of Sweden's Karolinska Institute (<http://www.nenzen.net/KI-Chancellor-Justice.pdf>). Sweden's Parliamentary Ombudsman (JO) abandons justice (<http://www.nenzen.net/JO-100527.pdf>) by refusing to investigate the appallingly discriminatory conduct of Sweden's Karolinska university. Every single lawyer in Sweden who is registered with the Swedish Bar Association has been asked through an email (<http://www.nenzen.net/Swedish-lawyers.pdf>) if they would be interested in this legal case against Sweden, but there is not one lawyer anywhere in Sweden who wants to accept this case. In personal dialogue with several of these Swedish lawyers, it is evident that Swedish lawyers are ignorant not only in these specific legal matters but are also remarkably ignorant in the abortion ethics, philosophy and sciences. Additionally, Swedish lawyers appear outstandingly greedy; distant from a pro bono attitude or service.

Also, none of the representatives of the offices of the Roman Catholic Church within Sweden, nor the Roman Catholic Bishop of Sweden, wants to respond to a repeated inquiry about facilitating access to a lawyer with pro-life knowledge. Swedish "Catholic" leaders are certainly not acting in the best interest of truth, benevolence, integrity of science, nor the protection of women's health in this matter through evasion of communication. It appears that the Catholic church leaders in Sweden are more Swedish than they are Catholic. But then, also the leaders of the Swedish evangelical "Christian" churches are practicably uninterested in these matters that concern correct science, truth, and human dignity. The destructive commonality between Swedish academia, Swedish parliamentarians, Swedish lawyers and Swedish priests/pastors is - Swedishness.

Sweden's Ministry of Education responses (<http://www.nenzen.net/Ministry-of-Education-response-100125.pdf>) (<http://www.nenzen.net/Swedish-Ministry-Education-100916.jpg>) (<http://www.nenzen.net/Swedish-Ministry-of-Education-121213.pdf>) after receiving repeated appeals during 6 years, is a mendacious assertion that the Swedish government cannot advise Karolinska Institutet to commence academic dialogue with their student; a claim that should be held as erroneous. That a Swedish government would collectively instruct Karolinska Institutet or that a Swedish minister would assert an opinion in support of evidence-based science, argumentation, and academic dialogue between Karolinska Institutet and the student, with regard to an already decided case (HSV; Ref nr 31-2618-07), ought not to be perceived as unlawful influence or unconstitutional ministerial rule. In reality, Swedish government ministries often influence and advise towards a desirable outcome. Therefore, I again appeal to Sweden's abortion-ignorant parliamentarians, that Sweden's malevolent government, in spite of Swedish cowardice and moral confusion, will advise Karolinska Institutet to immediately commence academic dialogue with me as their student in Public Health.

Is the American presidential election 2012 as gloomy as the choice between for example plague and cholera, or aids and cancer? The two US presidential candidates 2012 might be described religiously as: (1) a self-proclaimed Christian president Barack Obama who through his statements, values, policies and politics almost certainly is the most anti-Christian and duplicitous president in American history, and (2) a non-Christian cult-member Mitt Romney who, expediently for his political career ambition, has adopted the GOP-popular opinions, of which some opinions reflect Biblical Christian values. However, the moral contrast between the two presidential candidates is particularly clear in their respect for innocent human life; Obama is radically pro-abortion while Romney is conditionally pro-life.

It is a long-known fact that Swedes are the most extreme people on earth in relation to values. The results of a new survey, however, now also indicate that the most extreme people on earth, the Swedes, also host a significant proportion of self-centered and anti-democratic values among young-adult Swedes. Therefore, the corrupt nature of Sweden's Karolinska Institutet, the corrupt nature of Swedish professors, the corrupt nature of higher education in Sweden, the corrupt nature of "Christian" and "Catholic" leaders in Sweden, and the corrupt nature of political leaders in Sweden, is probable to increase in near future.:

- 26% of young-adult Swedes prefer a totalitarian ruler of Sweden, 12% of young-adult Swedes prefer a military dictatorship in Sweden, 20% of young-adult Swedes would alter their vote in favour for a political party that offers a monetary bribe, and 28% of young-adult Swedes would alter their vote in favour for a political party that offers a job position bribe.:

Typical Swedish madness; Swedish professors propose that Swedish abortion legislation should be further relativised, thereby further concealing the scientific/medical evidence and obscuring the dichotomous nature of philosophical/ethical clarity regarding elective abortion. The question that Swedish professors aspire to evade is: Do humans ever have a moral right to justify killing an innocent human being? This fundamental question can initially be answered in three parts: Is the foetus life? Absolute answer = yes. What species of life is the foetus? Absolute answer = human. Is the foetus guilty? Absolute answer = no.:

Abortion-Promoting and Malevolent Sweden Penalizes Proponents of Good Science and Reason with Academic Excommunication; through Karolinska Institutet

- A newly published study: Associate Professor Priscilla K. Coleman of Bowling Green State University, USA, published the article "Predictors and Correlates of Abortion in the Fragile Families and Well-Being Study: Paternal Behavior, Substance Use, and Partner Violence" in the International Journal of Mental Health and Addiction.
Abstract: This study was designed to identify predictors of the choice to abort or deliver a child within 18 months of a previous birth and to compare mothers who chose to abort or deliver relative to substance use and adverse partner behavior. Using a systems perspective, data from the Fragile Families and Well-Being Study were examined. The sample included participants from 16 cities, and within the selected cities, hospitals with high rates of unmarried births were chosen for inclusion in the survey. The data analysis process entailed two steps: 1) predictors of the choice to abort were identified statistically; 2) mothers who chose to abort and deliver were compared relative to heavy drinking, cigarette smoking, and adverse partner behavior after controlling for potentially confounding factors identified in step one. The results indicated that several variables pertaining to the father's commitment to raising a previously born child and to his relationship with the mother predicted the choice to abort. Further, a recent abortion was related to substance use and partner perpetrated physical aggression after the effects of confounding variables were removed. Professionals who work with women from impoverished environments facing an unplanned pregnancy should be encouraged to sensitively explore the woman's support system. If the father is unavailable, counselors can assist women in identifying other sources of support within and outside the family. 1. Associate Professor Priscilla Coleman of Bowling Green State University, USA, published the article "Induced abortion and anxiety, mood, and substance abuse disorders: Isolating the effects of abortion in the national comorbidity survey" in the Journal of Psychiatric Research, doi:10.1016/j.jpsychires.2008.10.009.
Abstract: The purpose of this study was to examine associations between abortion history and a wide range of anxiety (panic disorder, panic attacks, PTSD, Agoraphobia), mood (bipolar disorder, mania, major depression), and substance abuse disorders (alcohol and drug abuse and dependence) using a nationally representative US sample, the national comorbidity survey. Abortion was found to be related to an increased risk for a variety of mental health problems (panic attacks, panic disorder, agoraphobia, PTSD, bipolar disorder, major depression with and without hierarchy), and substance abuse disorders after statistical controls were instituted for a wide range of personal, situational, and demographic variables. Calculation of population attributable risks indicated that abortion was implicated in between 4.3% and 16.6% of the incidence of these disorders. Future research is needed to identify mediating mechanisms linking abortion to various disorders and to understand individual difference factors associated with vulnerability to developing a particular mental health problem after abortion.

2. Professor David M. Fergusson of University of Otago in Christchurch, New Zealand, published the article "Abortion and mental health disorders: evidence from a 30-year longitudinal study" in The British Journal of Psychiatry, (2008) 193: 444-451
Abstract: After adjustment for confounding, abortion was associated with a small increase in the risk of mental disorders; women who had had abortions had rates of mental disorder that were about 30% higher. There were no consistent associations between other pregnancy outcomes and mental health. Estimates of attributable risk indicated that exposure to abortion accounted for 1.5% to 5.5% of the overall rate of mental disorders. The evidence is consistent with the view that abortion may be associated with a small increase in risk of mental disorders. Other pregnancy outcomes were not related to increased risk of mental health problems. (Link: <http://bjp.rcpsych.org/cgi/content/abstract/193/6/444>)

Abstract: These findings add to the growing body of evidence suggesting that pregnancy loss per se, whether abortion or miscarriage, increases the risk of a range of substance use disorders and affective disorders in young women. (Link: <http://bjp.rcpsych.org/cgi/content/abstract/193/6/455>)

There are reasonable arguments and data to assume that Sweden's Karolinska Institutet exaggerate risks of increased unsafe abortions associated with restrictive abortion policy, and that Sweden's attacks against Poland, Portugal and the Catholic Church hence are based on erroneous claims. Contrary to Sweden's continued dissemination of false claims, facts remain that when Poland's total abortions dropped from 59417 to 782 between years 1990 and 1994, Polish women's deaths connected with pregnancy also diminished from 90 to 57, the number of spontaneous abortions dropped, and cases of infanticide was reduced. There was not, as Planned Parenthood proponents had predicted, an increase of illegal abortions in Poland as outcome from restricting induced abortions. Swedish professors still today disregard these statistics, presumably because advocacy of free induced abortion is a Swedish "holy" dogma.

To answer the question why some women continue an unwanted pregnancy after a closer consideration is not easy. The complexity of a woman's feeling in the matter seems to be moderated by the kind of support and stability she has in her life situation and also of the stability in relation to her partner. An equally important question is whether this change of mind is associated with a changed attitude to the expected baby (i.e., does an unwanted child become a wanted one?)."

Sweden's Karolinska Institutet Refuse Academic Communication with Student

The Royal College of Psychiatrists (RCPSYCH) in Great Britain advance science through recent recognition that some women may suffer mental ill health related to induced abortion. In contrast, Sweden's politically corrupted medical university Karolinska Institutet categorically deny all scientific evidence. Whilst RCPSYCH in Great Britain has now chosen to scientifically approach abortion science, Sweden continues to systematically and sciencephobically reject all the evidence that some women suffer mental ill health related to induced abortion. At Karolinska Institutet, where the political-domain intersect and confound the science-domain, existing scientific evidence and the pursuit of advancing scientific truth are forced to yield to Sweden's nationalistic interests and political agenda. Swedish studies in the abortion science appear more likely to conform with politically desired results; affirming national policies and political agenda rather than representing reality. In a full systematic literature review, as proposed by RCPSYCH, published articles should therefore be evaluated for scientific credibility and bias also in consideration to national and political contexts.

In international comparison, Sweden's contemporary values tilt toward justification of induced abortion more than any other surveyed nation on earth (www.worldvaluessurvey.org). The extreme justification of social behaviours in Sweden may in part explain the Karolinska Institutet professors' discriminatory denial and obstruent conduct and Swedish parliamentarians' sciencephobic repulsion against national policy contradiction. Sweden's anti-Christian attitudes and humanistic dogmas unjustly repel the published scientific evidence that some women suffer mental ill health related to induced abortion.

Sweden's Karolinska Institutet Unceasingly Refuse Academic Dialogue in Abortion Science

Contrary to Sweden's National Institute of Public Health statement "Evaluations show that current abortion legislation [in Sweden] has worked well and has had a positive impact on women's health.", there is no scientific evidence that abortion long-term alleviates any psychological symptoms in women, but induced abortion has been correlated to increased mental health problems after abortion; including Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD). For protection of women's interests, Sweden should instead ensure that all women considering abortion should by law be given accurate information about fetal development, the risks of abortion, and the resources and support available to them. In Sweden, ambivalent women considering abortion with financial or social rationale should be provided support for an equitable choice so that the alternatives to induced abortion (parenting or placing for adoption) are postpartum feasible and practical.

The Elliot Institute in USA suggests a legislation, the Protection from High Risk and Coerced Abortion Act, which would require abortionists to screen women for evidence that they are being coerced or forced into unwanted abortions and for other risk factors that are likely to put them at risk for post-traumatic stress and other problems after abortion.

Sweden's Karolinska Institutet Unceasingly Refuse Academic Dialogue in Abortion Science

The political arrogance of Sweden's Karolinska Institutet (www.ki.se) through its unceasing refusal to communicate academically with its registered student in Public Health is not only a disgrace to the prestigious Karolinska Nobel Prize Assembly, but the Karolinska Institutet continued discrimination against the international scientific evidence of mental ill health effects among women related to induced abortion also reinforce Karolinska Institutet's fading credibility as an actor of academic authority.

This Swedish style of cowardly rejecting the international abortion-science evidence without a single credible argument is unworthy of its claim to science. Karolinska Institutet is merely a national political instrument intended to glorify Sweden under the pretence of justifiable science. At Karolinska Institutet, where the science-domain intersect the political-domain, existing scientific evidence and the pursuit of advancing scientific truth are forced to yield to Sweden's nationalistic interests and political agenda. At Karolinska Institutet, national government policy overrule scientific evidence.

A logical political motive for the Swedish Karolinska Institutet's fervent obstruction against additional abortion-science research on mental ill health among women related to induced abortion is the risk that such additional research will strengthen the current international scientific evidence which today indicate that women do suffer mental ill health related to induced abortion. Rather than Sweden admitting that its present abortion policies contradict science, and hence realigning its policies with the international scientific evidence, Sweden and Karolinska Institutet instead have decided to refuse academic communication with its student in Public Health. This cowardly Swedish conduct must terminate.

Swedish Karolinska Institutet Absolutely Refuse Academic Dialogue in Abortion Science

The Swedish Karolinska Institutet (president Harriet Wallberg-Henriksson) instructed the Department of Public Health of the university to terminate all academic communication with me as its master student in Health Promotion, according to an official KI letter sent by Mats Gillberg on 2007-06-29. Despite several petitions to the state controlled Swedish university and its abortion-sciencephobic government, Karolinska Institutet absolutely refuse academic dialogue in this field of science.

Sweden's Karolinska Institutet absolute refusal of academic dialogue about mental ill health among women related to induced abortion is indicative of a dogmatically totalitarian governance.

Disparately to the Swedish academia, I maintain that scientific truth should be intellectually defensible. When a university's statements and academian conduct is confirmatively unjustifiable, it should realign its statements and conduct with science (and respectable behaviour). At Sweden's Karolinska Institutet, both scientific and professional integrity is currently compromised.

----- November 23, 2007 -----

Karolinska Institutet Evade Academic Dialogue in Abortion Science

Karolinska Institutet defeats its credibility as an authority in science by continuing to refuse academic dialogue.

Karolinska Institutet decided (2007-06-29) to terminate all academic communication with me as its master student in Health Promotion, because I had submitted a formal complaint against the Karolinska Institutet to the Swedish National Agency for Higher Education. Karolinska Institutet still refuse academic dialogue. Sweden's Karolinska Institutet have unsuccessfully argued their position in rejecting the international evidence-based abortion science, KI have refused to counter-argue evidence-based or philosophical arguments, blatantly lie about factual events (Professor Leif Svanström) and disregard any impartial assessment of the Public Health professors' conduct and their lack of argument (KI President Harriet Wallberg-Henriksson). There is currently no academic justice in Sweden within the abortion sciences.

The discriminations by Karolinska Institutet against evidence of negative health effects from induced abortion may be explained by either (1) imposed limitations from Swedish political authorities, or by (2) self-regulated restrictions from Swedish professors' cowardice toward government contradiction coupled with careerist self-interests, or by (3) unfortunate coincidences of Swedish professors' ignorance.

Sweden's Karolinska Institutet observably does not tolerate academic freedom in abortion science. Absent from the nationalistic and politically permeated university culture at Karolinska Institutet, evidently, is endeavour to pursue knowledge wherever it may lead without undue or unreasonable interference, and a good sense of ethical direction. Swedish academia at Karolinska Institutet is prejudiced against results that disagree with national government policies. The academic restraints at Karolinska Institutet unjustly limit not only choice of thesis foci, but also inhibit production of knowledge in areas of political volatility; especially pertaining to issues that contradict Swedish government policies.

By refusing academic dialogue, as Sweden's Karolinska Institutet does, universities defeat their credibility as authorities of knowledge. In any democratic society, modern state-funded public universities should primarily rely on empirical sciences, logical inference, and strength of argument for its production and dissemination of knowledge. In social epistemological perspective, interaction between academics and for example governments and activist groups is necessary for a fair democratic system, but where academic institutions restrict undesirable results without argument or ethical motives, democracy undermines itself. If believed truths in science are not justifiable, the risk increases that believed propositions in science also include the untrue. The deficiency of justification of statements made by Karolinska Institutet regarding abortion-science, and this university's absence of academic dialogue in the subject, endanger healthy democracy.

No Academic Justice in Sweden for Abortion Science

The Swedish Agency for Higher Education has made an official decision (2007-09-06) regarding my complaint against the Swedish medical university Karolinska Institutet (www.ki.se) appalling discrimination of my examination work, its unmotivated obstruction of my thesis writing, its evasion of academic dialogue, and its denial of the international evidence-based science which confirm that some women suffer mental ill health related to induced abortion. The Swedish Agency for Higher Education decided that Karolinska Institutet (only Karolinska Institutet professors constitute members of the Nobel Assembly for the Nobel Prize in Medicine) has acted suitably, in spite the KI blatant discriminations, KI unmotivated obstructions, KI evasion of academic communication, and KI denial of the abortion science that jeopardize Swedish abortion policies.

I am still not permitted by the Swedish professors at Karolinska Institutet (KI) within Public Health and Health Promotion to write a master-level thesis on women's mental ill health related to induced abortion, because Swedish academia at Karolinska Institutet decline the existence of published scientific evidence in worldwide recognised international journals. The KI rejection of the published scientific evidence lack justification. Anyone with access to pubmed.gov knows, however, that Sweden's academia has aligned itself with Sweden's national abortion policies rather than conforming with evidence-based abortion science. Since abundant scientific evidence exist, it is perceptible that these Swedish professor-cowards at Karolinska Institutet merely dare not oppose aggressive anti-science opinions from Swedish parliamentarians, interest groups and collegial pressures.

Universities defeat their credibility by refusing academic dialogue. Karolinska Institutet decided (2007-06-29) to terminate all academic communication with me as its master student in Health Promotion, because I had submitted a formal complaint against the Karolinska Institutet to the Swedish National Agency for Higher Education. Karolinska Institutet still refuse academic dialogue. Sweden's Karolinska Institutet have unsuccessfully argued their position in rejecting the international evidence-based abortion science, KI have refused to counter-argue evidence-based or philosophical arguments, blatantly lie about factual events (Professor Leif Svanström) and disregard any impartial assessment of the Public Health professors' conduct and their lack of argument (KI President Harriet Wallberg-Henriksson). There is no academic justice in Sweden within the abortion sciences.

The Swedish Professor of International Health, Marcello-Ferrada Noli, at Karolinska Institutet claimed (2007-02-12) that he was unable to supervise abortion-related theses proposals which may suggest a relationship between mental ill health and induced abortion, because according to him "There is no evidence in literature." Additionally, the Swedish Professor in Social Medicine at Karolinska Institutet, Leif Svanström, (also head of the WHO Collaborating Centre on Community Safety Promotion in Sweden) had falsely claimed to Professor Marcello-Ferrada Noli that I did not satisfy formal requirements for thesis-writing. The Swedish Professor Leif Svanström was later confronted by the Student Union in regards to his lies about unsatisfactory formal requirements, resulting in the Swedish Professor's withdrawal from his false accusation. Swedish Professor Leif Svanström intention was to obstruct a politically sensitive thesis in Sweden. In other words, additional evidence that some women suffer mental ill health related to induced abortion is non-permissible in Swedish academia.

In an email conversation (2006-11-07) with a Swedish researcher referenced by Karolinska Institutet as an authority in abortion questions, a public lecturer of gynecology in Sweden, and appointed in Sweden's Legal Secretariat at the National Board of Health and Welfare regarding decisions for late abortions, Gynecologist Lotti Helström acknowledges to never previously have heard about Post Abortion Syndrome "Post Abortion Syndrome, something that I never before have heard anything about, in spite many years as a clinician and researcher." Is this grave academic ignorance or Swedish political denial?

Sweden's National Institute of Public Health contradict international scientific evidence through their untrue statement "Evaluations show that current abortion legislation [in Sweden] has worked well and has had a positive impact on women's health."

The Swedish Professor in Social Medicine at Karolinska Institutet, Bjarne Jansson, stated in conversation (2007-04-11) that the cause for my academic conflict with KI concerning induced abortion is that I am not sufficiently Swedish "The problem is that you are not Swedish." The Swedish professor's nationalistic deduction would therefore logically derive from the premise: Swedishness is an attribute for uncritically approving Sweden's abortion policies, rather than non-Swedishly presenting thesis ideas based on published articles in recognised scientific journals.

Examiner Bo Henricsson at the Department of Public Health at Karolinska Institutet underscores Sweden's nationalistic attitude to abortion science in his written remark regarding Sweden's abortion policies in relation to international abortion research "Sweden has come further on this matter."

Strategic Director for the Swedish National Institute of Public Health questions my written affirmation that "All human life deserves equal protection by law." Deviancy from this statement of assurance for equal human value and human dignity for all humans, regardless of for example ethnicity or age, signal open-mindedness towards systematic discriminations. The international consensus through Articles 1 and 7 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights "All human life deserves equal protection by law." appears irrelevant to the Strategic Director of the Swedish National Institute of Public Health, as the Human Rights statement, according to him, cannot be proven scientifically.

The Swedish Professor in Reproductive Health at Karolinska Institutet, Kyllike Christensson, exploit her position as a representative of science. This Swedish KI professor defends (2007-02-12) her rejection of international abortion-science through her statement "KI work for promoting good health in the world and follow in this regard the Swedish Ministry of Foreign Affairs policy: Sexual and Reproductiv Health and Rights." According to this Swedish KI Professor, Sweden's Ministry of Foreign Affairs is the ultimate authority on abortion-science in Sweden - not science itself.

The President of Sweden's Karolinska Institutet, Professor Harriet Wallberg-Henriksson, presents a series of blatant untruths in her deceptive letter to the Swedish Agency for Higher Education. The KI President does, nevertheless, reaffirm the university's secondary priority to science and a prioritized relationship with the Swedish Parliamentarians, through her statement "The intervention suggested by Nenzén is not realistic as it contradicts the Swedish Parliament [Riksdag] standpoint concerning abortion and unwanted pregnancies." Deceivingly, the KI President perverts reality with her concluding statement: "Within the frame of what is possible, KI has put a lot of effort into trying to accommodate his wishes." The truth is that Karolinska Institutet continuously evade sincere academic dialogue about mental ill health among women related to induced abortion. Still today, KI refuses to communicate academically with me.

The Swedish Karolinska Institutet (KI) has admitted that it lacks scientific competence in abortion science. "We [at KI] don't have the competence. We don't have the money to pay for an external supervisor." [KI Professor Bjarne Jansson cited 2007-03-26]. Scientifically competent and highly merited researchers in Canada and USA have personally expressed support, and one Canadian researcher has in person offered to academically supervise my thesis without requiring monetary compensation for academic supervision and knowledge contributions. The difference in university culture and interpersonal attitudes between Sweden's Karolinska Institutet and for example American/Canadian universities is distinct. A Canadian environmental health professional in Vancouver summarized the Canadian/American attitudes appropriately "Here, people would bend over backwards to help you proceed with a good thesis." when I visited in September 2007. At Karolinska Institutet, however, Swedish professors make concerted efforts to make life in Sweden difficult.

The anti-Christian values (www.worldvaluessurvey.org) and anti-Semitic values (levandehistoria.se) in Swedish society are reflected in surveys. Furthermore, Sweden's Karolinska Institutet professors and Swedish parliamentarians additionally indicate some anti-science attitudes when it pertains to issues that contradict Swedish government policies – specifically for example policy on induced abortion.

Sweden's Karolinska Institutet continues its discrimination of abortion science

It appears that the Swedish government politics of exporting Swedish abortion policies internationally has greater importance in Sweden than evidence-based science at Swedish universities.

Karolinska Institutet

Karolinska Institutet appears to have adopted also a Swedish policy of refusal to communicate with me – perhaps due to a Karolinska Institutet’s fear of consequences of adherence to evidence within the abortion sciences.

Sweden’s Karolinska Institutet discriminates abortion science

Karolinska Institutet’s Department of Public Health continues to obstruct and discriminate. The Department of Public Health recur its maneuver to evade arguments and evade responsibility, with presumed purpose for obstructing progression of a comprehensive approach to abortion science. It is apparent that Karolinska Institutet attempt to prevail on biased results, through elimination of such research which results risk to strengthen indications that women may suffer mental ill health after induced abortion, and through discrimination of research which results might indicate human intrinsic support for lowering the maximum legal gestation age of foetuses for induced abortion in Sweden.

Since Karolinska Institutet fail to present any credible reason for opposing a master-thesis, my proposal for master-thesis within the Health Promotion course of Public Health remain as previously stated, until Karolinska Institutet in Sweden can provide a credible argument for its opposition.
